

My name is Aly Asher. I m a student of Bahria College. I came to know about this program through my brother who attended the last year's session. I thank all the members of the Hussaini Foundation for giving me this opportunity, because it was really an experience of a lifetime for me

I was assigned the student of fourth grade. He was really good at arts. At the end of every class I made him draw something and he never failed to impress me. Other than his drawing, his aspirations were very high. If you ask some child what you want to do when you grow up, most will have similar answers of being a doctor or a pilot or a banker or a businessman. But this child, was different. On asking what you want to do when you grow up, he said ill go to Japan and then master Kung Fu! I guess this was one of the reasons I started to love him.

It wasnt all romantic. Even if sometimes I came late in class, he never wanted to study. He was always asking for PT and to let them go out for games.

My Experience was wonderful. I was brought to teach them but I learned from them more. It helped me understand the mentality of younger children. I hope it helps me understand life and to understand my own younger brother better and makes me able to help them in their future.

Thank you all very much! :)
